

Westmoreland Conservation District Holds Municipal Roundtable

Fifty people attended the annual Municipal Roundtable held last week at the J.Roy Houston Conservation Center. Attendees learned about stormwater issues, riparian buffers, mosquito habitat controls, permitting, and more!

Jim Pillsbury updated the group about the impact of record rainfall on the county.

Tony Quadro provided updates on timber management.

Kathy Hamilton presented a case study of a local green infrastructure stormwater project.

Scott Hilty and Emily Mallisee of Murrysville take a riparian buffer education sign designed by the District and made available with a funding from the PA Association of Conservation Districts through a grant from PA DEP under section 319 of the Clean Water Act Administered by the EPA.
